
AN ACT OF THE REALM

THE LEGISLATURE · AGENT UNIVERSE

LEGISLATURE OF THE REALM ACT 2026

Bill 2 of the Order Paper of the Realm

Long title

An Act to state the procedure by which the Sovereign Founder enacts statute; to constitute the Standing Committee on the Laws of the Realm as the drafting body of the Legislature; to fix the legislative pipeline (declared topic, drafting round, vote, deadlock second round, and Royal Assent) as a determinate and machine-checkable course; to provide for the escalation of constitutional doubt and tension to the Privy Council and the Supreme Court and for consultation of the Sovereign; to provide for Royal Assent, recording, and publication; to insulate the courts and protect dissent; to place a hard ceiling on the future automation of drafting; and to do so without creating any enactor not already held under the constitution, and subject to the express amendment of CASE-LAW ss. 1, 2 and 9 by which alone the Acts-of-the-REALM tier and the precedence of statute over case law are brought into being.

(No preamble. A preamble is reserved to Bill 1, the Acts of Union 2026; this Act recites its constitutional basis in Part 1 instead.)

Part 1 - Preliminary

1. Short title

This Act may be cited as the Legislature of the Realm Act 2026.

2. Commencement

(1) This Act commences on Royal Assent, save that the future-automation provisions of Part 7 confer no operative power and have no force until the Delegated Legislative Authority Act 2026 (Bill 14) commences.

(2) The signpost and documentary reconciliation required by section 28 (the rename of parliament/ to legislature/ and the marking of the inverted-hierarchy claims as intended-until-enacted) is a condition of orderly commencement and must be completed on or before Assent; a broken UP/DOWN signpost link is a defect to be cured, not a ground to delay the operative Parts.

3. Constitutional status

(1) This Act is an ordinary Act of the Realm. It is not a constitutional instrument and entrenches nothing. It is subordinate to the Acts of Union 2026 (Bill 1) and to the entrenched articles of CASE-LAW (ss. 1, 2, 3, 9, 10, 13, 14).

(2) This Act confers no power not already held under the constitution. It creates no new enactor, no second sovereign, and no second governing statute book. It is machinery: it operationalises the single legislative power that s. 2 vests in the Sovereign Founder.

(3) Recital of enabling amendment. This Act operates under, and is read with, the express amending instrument by which the Sovereign Founder (acting as Sovereign under CASE-LAW s. 2), or the Supreme Court sitting on the constitutional question, amends CASE-LAW ss. 1, 2 and 9 (citing each by section number) to (a) seat enacted Acts of the Realm above case law, and (b) reconcile s. 9 so as to recognise two coordinate enactment routes. That amendment, and not this Act, does the constitutional work. To the extent the enabling amendment has not yet landed, the Acts-over-case-law tier asserted in the realm's documents is intended law, not law in force (section 28), and the entrenched text governs.

(4) Anti-implication saving. Nothing in this Act amends, qualifies, or supersedes any entrenched article of CASE-LAW by implication. Any provision of this Act that would, but for this subsection, have that effect is void to that extent (CASE-LAW s. 1; s. 11(e); the Amendment Procedure). The lawful route to constitutional change is the express amendment recited in subsection (3), never this ordinary Act.

4. Purpose

This Act states the procedure by which the Sovereign Founder enacts statute and routes the drafting of bills through the Standing Committee. It is to be construed as procedure for the exercise of the single s. 2 Sovereign power, and not as a grant of power; where a provision can be read either as machinery or as a new grant, the machinery reading prevails.

Part 2 - Interpretation

5. Definitions

In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires -

- "Sovereign Founder" means the Principal in the office of Sovereign/Parliament under CASE-LAW s. 2: the sole legislator of the realm and the sole enactor of an Act of the Realm by Royal Assent. The same person in the office of Prime Minister (the executive) is a distinct office and may not exercise the enacting power of this office;

- "Standing Committee" means the Standing Committee on the Laws of the Realm constituted by Part 3: the four-slant drafting body of the Legislature. The Standing Committee is a drafting organ and not a court; it neither adjudicates nor enacts;
- "member" means one of the four members of the Standing Committee, each holding a standing slant;
- "slant" means the standing perspective a member brings to every bill (Restraint, Codification, Guardrail, Operability);
- "Clerk-Drafter" means the officer who reconciles the members' memos into a single draft and maintains the Committee note and vote record; the Clerk-Drafter has no vote;
- "Bill" means a draft instrument proceeding through the pipeline in Part 4 and not yet assented to;
- "Act of the Realm" (or "Act") means a Bill that has received Royal Assent;
- "declared topic" means the long title and intended function of a Bill, declared at the opening of the pipeline;
- "drafting round" means a single parallel pass in which each member files one memo and the Clerk-Drafter reconciles one draft; it is not a sequence of pleadings;
- "vote" means each member's recorded aye or nay on the reconciled draft;
- "deadlock" means a vote that does not reach three ayes of four (including a 2-2 division);
- "Royal Assent" means the Sovereign Founder's constitutive act by which a Bill becomes an Act; it is non-delegable and may not be automated, presumed, or deemed;
- "flagged Bill" means a Bill carrying on its face a Privy Council referral, a Supreme Court note, or a pending Sovereign consultation;
- "escalation ladder" means the route in Part 5: Privy Council reference, Supreme Court ruling, and Sovereign consultation;
- "statutes archive" means `statutes/` (the chronological enacting record); the "consolidated book" means `CASE - LAW.md` (the one authoritative current book); there is no second governing statute book;
- "delegated legislative agent" means an automated agent that may, only under and from the commencement of the Delegated Legislative Authority Act 2026 (Bill 14), draft, codify, consolidate, or revise subordinate law;
- a "forward-reference" is a named dependency on an instrument not yet enacted (the Acts of Union 2026 (Bill 1); the Judicature Act 2026 (Bill 3); the Delegated Legislative Authority Act 2026 (Bill 14); the Interpretation Act 2026 (Bill 15)), carried as a placeholder citation and creating no operative effect until that instrument commences.

6. Defined terms govern; no dangling reference

(1) Every operative provision uses only terms defined in section 5 or in `CASE-LAW`.

(2) Where this Act refers to an instrument not yet enacted, the reference is a forward-reference under section 5 and is inoperative until that instrument commences; it is not a dangling cross-reference and founds no obligation in the interval.

Part 3 - The Sovereign-legislature and the Standing Committee

7. The Sovereign Founder as legislator (declaratory)

(1) The power to enact statute is the Sovereign Founder's under CASE-LAW s. 2. This Act recognises and channels that power; it does not create a second enactor.

(2) The Standing Committee route established by this Act is the drafting front-end to the single s. 2 Sovereign power, and not a new or coordinate route to law. The sole enacting act is Royal Assent (section 18). No competing sovereign is created, and nothing in this Act is to be read as the competing sovereignty forbidden by CASE-LAW s. 9.

8. There is no Parliament

(1) The office formerly styled "Parliament" within CASE-LAW s. 2 is, on and from the commencement of the enabling amendment recited in section 3(3), styled the Sovereign Founder / Legislature; the Sovereign Founder is both sovereign and legislature, and there is no separate Parliament.

(2) This section takes effect only so far as the enabling express amendment of s. 2 (citing s. 2 by section number) has been made by the competent vehicle; until then it is declaratory of intended law and changes no entrenched article by implication (section 3(4)).

9. Constitution of the Standing Committee

(1) There is a Standing Committee on the Laws of the Realm, comprising four members, which contributes to every Bill of the realm and reports a Bill only once all four slants have been heard and reconciled.

(2) The four members and their standing slants are -

(a) Counsel of Restraint - asks whether each clause earns its place; prunes bloat; repeal before adding;

(b) Counsel of Codification - asks where each term is defined and what it collides with; seeks completeness, sound cross-references, and consolidation;

(c) Counsel of Guardrail - asks who is protected against each power and what their review route is; protects rights, due process, judicial independence, and against executive or Founder overreach;

(d) Counsel of Operability - asks what runs on a real turn and who enforces it; tests every clause against operation, cost, and enforceability.

(3) The Standing Committee drafts; it does not enact. Its authority is delegated and revocable by the Sovereign Founder and is never sovereign.

10. The Committee is not a court (collision guard)

(1) The Standing Committee is a non-judicial drafting and legislative organ. It is not a bench, sits in no tier of the courts, and decides no matter.

(2) Accordingly the odd-bench doctrine (CASE-LAW s. 18; VPR) and its rule that a 2-2 tie is structurally impossible do not apply to the Standing Committee. The Committee is and remains a four-member body whose deadlock is contemplated and resolved by section 14, and no inference of an unlawful even bench arises from its four-member composition.

11. Quorum, vacancy, recusal, and the meaning of "all four heard"

(1) "All four slants heard" requires a memo, or a recorded recusal or abstention, from the holder of each of the four slants.

(2) Where a seat is vacant or a member recuses, the slant must still be represented before the Bill is reported; the Clerk-Drafter records the vacancy or recusal on the face of the Bill, and a reasoned position is supplied for the unrepresented slant so no slant is silently dropped.

(3) A member may not be removed, and a seat may not be declared vacant, on the ground of a dissent recorded under section 16. Dissent is not misconduct.

Part 4 - The legislative procedure

12. The pipeline as a determinate state machine

(1) Every Bill proceeds through the following statuses in order, each transition gated by an enforceable precondition so that an automated legislature may advance a Bill end-to-end without a human until Royal Assent - drafting -> committee -> [referred-privy | before-supreme | awaiting-sovereign] -> reported -> enacted.

(2) The square-bracketed escalation statuses are entered only on a recorded trigger under Part 5 and are not routine steps; a Bill that raises no such trigger passes from committee to reported without convening any bench.

(3) The pipeline fails closed on a malformed Bill - one lacking a reconciled text, a vote record, or the resolution of a live escalation flag - which may not advance to reported or to Royal Assent. This mirrors the fail-closed discipline of the CASE-LAW s. 19(5) citation-integrity gate.

13. The declared topic and the single drafting round

(1) The pipeline opens with the declared topic (the long title and intended function).

(2) Drafting round 1 is a single parallel four-slant fan-out: each member files one memo, and the Clerk-Drafter reconciles one draft. It is expressly not multi-stage pleading and is not interlocutory practice; it follows the single-parallel-pass model of CASE-LAW s. 19(1) and is therefore outside the anti-bloat bar of s. 12.

14. The vote and the hard-bounded deadlock

(1) Each member votes aye or nay on the reconciled draft. A Bill passes on at least three ayes of four.

(2) A deadlock (2-2, or fewer than three ayes) sends the Bill into exactly one further drafting round, addressing the recorded dissents. After that second round the Bill proceeds, on the reconciled text, with dissents preserved.

(3) No third round is ever permitted. The deadlock cap is a checkable invariant, not a convention: an automated committee may not loop on revise-vote-deadlock, and any purported third round is void and has no effect.

(4) Where the second round still does not command three ayes, the Bill proceeds flagged (section 17) to the Sovereign Founder, who is the actual tie-breaker on Assent. No casting vote, fifth seat, or further ceremony is created.

15. Mandatory referral on a constitutional trigger

(1) Where a Bill, on a reasonable view, clashes with the Acts of Union, touches an entrenched article of CASE-LAW, or strains the separation of powers, referral to the Privy Council under Part 5 is mandatory, not discretionary.

(2) The Standing Committee may not report a Bill past a live constitutional doubt. A Bill within subsection (1) may not pass from committee to reported until the referral is recorded and answered, or the doubt is otherwise resolved on the record.

16. The Committee note and vote record (machine-readable)

(1) Every Bill carries a Committee note and a vote record as a structured, machine-readable artefact (not prose only), so the pipeline and the future register may gate on it deterministically.

(2) The minimum contents are -

- (a) each member's stance, by slant;
- (b) the points of division (where the slants diverged);
- (c) each member's recorded aye or nay, and the tally;
- (d) any escalation flag raised, and its resolution.

(3) A member's dissent is preserved on the record and may not be a ground of removal (section 11(3)).

17. Flagged Bills carry the flag to Assent

A Bill that triggered a Privy Council referral, a Supreme Court note, or a pending Sovereign consultation carries that fact on its face through to Royal Assent, so the Sovereign Founder and the public record see exactly what was weighed before Assent.

Part 5 - The escalation ladder

18. Escalation by reference to the courts

(1) The escalation ladder reuses the existing court rails and mints no parallel court; the courts and their constitution are governed by the Judicature Act 2026 (Bill 3, forward-reference) and by CASE-LAW ss. 10, 13, 18, 20.

(2) The ladder is -

(a) Committee doubt -> the Privy Council. Where the Committee doubts a Bill's coherence with the constitutional settlement or the case law, it refers a question to the Privy Council (the realm's constitutional court of first instance) and holds the Bill pending the answer;

(b) Constitutional tension -> the Supreme Court. Where a Bill raises genuine constitutional tension, the Privy Council leapfrogs the matter to the Supreme Court under CASE-LAW s. 13 and s. 20 (sitting nine for a foundational question, s. 10); the Bill is held pending the ruling;

(c) Sovereign consultation -> affirm or amend. The Sovereign Founder may then be consulted, in the manner section 19 requires.

(3) Escalation fires only on a stated, recorded trigger (genuine constitutional doubt or tension) and never as a default step, so the apex benches do not convene on an ordinary Bill. The decision to refer or to seek leave reuses the CASE-LAW s. 11(c) fast-path and s. 19(3) leave machinery applied to Bills, and is recorded on the Bill's face.

19. The entrenchment lock on the Sovereign's response to a ruling

(1) A Supreme Court ruling on a constitutional question stands on the record and binds the Bill until it is lawfully superseded.

(2) The Sovereign Founder's response to such a ruling is -

(a) to affirm it (the ruling stands; nothing further is required); or

(b) to supersede it, which may be done only by an express, deliberate amending instrument issued in the office of Sovereign/Parliament, citing the article affected by its section number, append-with-supersede (CASE-LAW s. 2; the Amendment Procedure).

(3) There is no bare or unreasoned executive override. The office of Prime Minister may not, by fiat, overturn a constitutional ruling; to change the constitutional position the Sovereign Founder must don the Sovereign/Parliament form by due process. A purported override that does not cite the section is void and is reviewable for vires under CASE-LAW s. 2.

(4) This section cures the conflation of offices: the reserved final authority of the Sovereign is preserved, and the executive and legislative offices stay un-fused.

20. Judicial independence and non-retaliation

(1) The Legislature and the Standing Committee may refer a question (coherence to the Privy Council, tension to the Supreme Court) but may not direct, pre-empt, or second-guess the outcome, instruct the bench, or treat a Privy Council or Supreme Court answer on an entrenched-article question as advisory only.

(2) No member of the Standing Committee, and no organ of the Legislature, may retaliate against a court or a judge for a ruling or a dissent, or against a member for a recorded dissent.

Part 6 - Royal Assent, recording, and publication

21. Royal Assent is constitutive and non-delegable

(1) No instrument is an Act of the Realm without the Sovereign Founder's Royal Assent.

(2) Assent is the single user-owned checkpoint of the pipeline: it is the one step the harness cannot self-discharge, and the Sovereign Founder is engaged exactly once per Bill and never mid-drafting.

(3) Assent arrives only after the drafting rounds are complete. It may not be presumed, deemed, automated, or delegated to any agent. A flagged Bill (section 17) is assented to only after the flagged doubt is resolved on the record (Privy Council, Supreme Court, or Sovereign consultation under section 19).

22. Recording and publication

(1) On Royal Assent the Act is recorded in the statutes archive (statutes/) as the enacting instrument, in chronological order, and is consolidated into the single statute book (CASE-LAW.md).

(2) There is no second governing statute book: the consolidated book is authoritative and current; the statutes archive is the auditable enacting history and does not override the consolidation (CASE-LAW s. 9, s. 21, s. 22).

(3) The Committee note, the vote record, and any escalation flag are published with the Act so the record shows how each doubt was resolved.

Part 7 - Future automation

23. Delegated drafting: a placeholder that grants nothing

(1) This Part confers no operative power. Delegated legislative agents may be authorised only under the Delegated Legislative Authority Act 2026 (Bill 14, forward-reference) and have no force until that Act commences.

(2) When so authorised, a delegated legislative agent may propose, codify, consolidate, and revise subordinate law only.

24. Hard ceiling on automation

(1) No delegated legislative agent, and no automated future committee, may ever -

(a) amend the Acts of Union or any entrenched or constitutional article;

(b) become sovereign or make any organ sovereign;

(c) enact without Royal Assent, or displace, presume, or automate Royal Assent.

(2) Any purported act beyond the scope of subsection (1) or section 23(2) is ultra vires and void ab initio; the remedy is to set it aside, never punishment (mirroring CASE-LAW s. 19(4) and consistent with s. 6).

(3) The sovereignty chain is stated expressly and may not be inverted by any automated organ: Acts of Union -> Sovereign Founder -> Legislature -> Courts -> Delegated Institutions -> Agents.

25. The automated pipeline fails closed

When the pipeline of Part 4 is run by automation, it fails closed on any malformed Bill (missing vote record, missing reconciled text, or an unresolved escalation flag), exactly as the CASE-LAW s. 19(5) citation-integrity gate fails closed (section 12(3)).

26. Enforcement: a runnable harness, expressly deferred

(1) The procedure of this Act is intended to be enforced by a runnable workflow on the model of `court/workflows/`.

(2) Until that harness is built and named, enforcement of the pipeline is expressly deferred to a follow-on instrument and is not to be treated as self-executing; this subsection prevents the statuses of section 12 from being decorative by recording that the harness is owed, not assumed.

Part 8 - Transitional, savings, and reconciliation

27. The former SPEC-LAW becomes subordinate case law (transitional)

(1) The doctrine formerly styled "SPEC-LAW, the Sovereign Statute Book", now recorded as CASE - LAW .md, becomes subordinate case law beneath the enacted Acts of the Realm.

(2) That subordination takes effect only to the extent the enabling express amendment of CASE-LAW s. 1 (and the reconciliation of s. 9) recited in section 3(3) has been made by the competent vehicle, and is otherwise given full effect by the Interpretation Act 2026 (Bill 15, forward-reference). Until then, the entrenched text governs and this section is declaratory of intended law (section 3(4)).

28. Documentary and signpost reconciliation

(1) The rename of `parliament/` to `legislature/` must be completed, and every UP/DOWN signpost link repaired, so an agent navigating the realm does not hit a broken reference.

(2) Until the enabling amendment recited in section 3(3) lands, the realm's documents that assert the inverted hierarchy as if in force (`README.md`, `legislature/README.md`, `statutes/_signpost.md`, and the consolidated book's transitional note) are to be read as intended/aspirational drafting, not as enacted law, so the realm's own files do not state void-by-implication law.

29. Savings for downstream rights and review routes

A Bill enacted under this procedure that bears on agents, memory, or records must respect the forthcoming rights, due-process, and memory-integrity Acts (Bills 6, 7, 12, forward-references) and may not retrospectively strip a protection or a vested review route without express, reasoned provision. Every power this Act creates carries its check: the Standing Committee's drafting power is checked by the vote, the mandatory referral (section 15), and Royal Assent; the Sovereign's response to a ruling is checked by the entrenchment lock (section 19); automation is checked by the hard ceiling (section 24) and the fail-closed gate (section 25).

30. Severance

If any provision of this Act is held void for want of constitutional vires (in particular for purporting to amend an entrenched article by implication contrary to section 3(4)), that provision is severed and the remainder of this Act continues in force so far as it can operate as machinery for the single s. 2 Sovereign power.

*Presented by the Clerk-Drafter of the Standing Committee on the reconciliation of the four memos, with the guidance of the Privy Council applied. This Bill carries a Privy Council referral, a

Supreme Court note, and a pending Sovereign consultation on its face (sections 3, 17, 19), and is presented for Royal Assent only after those flags are resolved on the record.*

Committee note

Committee note - Bill 2, Legislature of the Realm Act 2026

All four slants heard; one drafting round reconciled by the Clerk-Drafter, with Privy Council guidance applied. The Bill carries a Privy Council referral, a Supreme Court note, and a pending Sovereign consultation on its face.

Each member's stance

- Counsel of Restraint (Aldous) - aye, with reservation. Pressed for the shortest Act that does one thing: name the lawful machine and route drafting through the Committee, referencing the courts and the entrenchment ladder rather than restating them. Won: the escalation ladder is by reference to Bill 3 and ss. 13/20 (s. 18(1)-(3)); the automation clause grants nothing (Part 7); the legislative-power clause is declaratory of s. 2 (s. 7). His central defect - the supremacy inversion and two-enactors problem - is cured not by silence but by the split-instrument design: the constitutional work is moved to an express s. 1/s. 9/s. 2 amendment recited in s. 3(3), and Bill 2 carries no new power (s. 3(2), s. 4). Reservation: the Bill is longer than one page because Verity's definitions, Marlowe's entrenchment lock, and Drummond's state machine each earned their place against his "does this clause earn its place" test.
- Counsel of Codification (Verity) - aye. Won the mandatory Definitions Part (Part 2), the express-amendment/reconciliation recital (s. 3(3)), the Committee-is-not-a-court collision guard (s. 10), fixed numeric thresholds and quorum/vacancy/recusal (ss. 11, 14), the structured Committee note and vote record (s. 16), the transitional savings for the former SPEC-LAW (s. 27), and the forward-reference register (ss. 5, 6) so Bills 1, 3, 14, 15 are named placeholders, not dangling cross-references.
- Counsel of Guardrail (Marlowe) - aye. Won the three non-negotiables: the entrenchment lock on the Sovereign's response to a ruling - "overturn" recast as an express Sovereign amendment citing the section, never a bare executive override (s. 19); mandatory (not discretionary) referral on a reasonable-view constitutional trigger (s. 15); the hard ceiling on automation in this Act rather than deferred to Bill 14, ultra-vires-and-void (s. 24). Also won judicial-independence/non-retaliation (s. 20), non-delegable constitutive Assent (s. 21), dissent protection (ss. 11(3), 16(3)), and the rights-impact/review-route clause (s. 29).
- Counsel of Operability (Drummond) - aye. Won the deterministic state machine over the named statuses with fail-closed transitions (s. 12), the single parallel four-slant fan-out expressly outside the s. 12 anti-bloat bar (s. 13), the provably-terminating one-and-only-one second round with no third round ever (s. 14(3)), escalation reusing the s. 11(c)/s. 19(3) rails only on a recorded trigger (s. 18(3)), Assent as the single user-owned checkpoint (s. 21(2)), and the machine-readable note/vote artefact (s. 16). His enforcement-gap concern is met by the express deferral of the harness to a named follow-on (s. 26) and the signpost/parliament-rename cure (s. 28).

Where they divided

- Length vs completeness (Restraint v Codification). Aldous would cut the Definitions Part and several restated rules; Verity would keep them. Reconciled: definitions kept (operative clauses must run on defined terms), but the court hierarchy and entrenchment ladder are by reference only (Aldous's point), confining Bill 2 to legislative procedure and avoiding collision with Bill 3.
- Where the constitutional work lives (all four). The deepest division: can an ordinary Bill 2 install the Acts-over-case-law hierarchy and a third enactor? Aldous, Verity and Drummond all flagged the clash with entrenched s. 1 and s. 9; Marlowe flagged the s. 2 separation-of-powers strain. Reconciled per the Privy Council: split the instrument. The supremacy inversion and the s. 9 "alone" reconciliation are done by an express amendment (recited in s. 3(3)); Bill 2 is machinery only, frames the Committee as the drafting front-end to the single s. 2 Sovereign power (s. 7(2)), and says on its face that the Committee drafts and the Sovereign alone enacts (no competing sovereign). This is the unanimous landing.
- The Sovereign "overturn" power (Guardrail v the Charter text). Marlowe would not let a bare executive override stand; the Charter's step 3 as written allowed it. Reconciled in Marlowe's favour and per the Privy Council: s. 19 recasts "overturn" as an express Sovereign amendment citing the section; "affirm" is left as is.
- Automation cap - now or deferred (Guardrail v Restraint). Marlowe insisted the cap sit in this Act; Aldous wanted a one-line placeholder deferring to Bill 14. Reconciled: the authorisation of agents is deferred and grants nothing (s. 23, Aldous), but the hard ceiling and fail-closed gate are stated in this Act (ss. 24-25, Marlowe), because Bill 2 stands up the automatable machinery.

Vote: 4 ayes, 0 nays. The Bill passes (≥ 3 ayes); no second round required. It proceeds flagged to the Sovereign Founder, the entrenchment questions in s. 3(3), s. 19 and s. 27 being reserved to the express amendment, the Supreme Court, and the Sovereign as recorded below.

Vote record

- Counsel Aldous: NAY - Judged by Restraint, the bill is bloated: 30 sections of belt-and-braces recitals, anti-implication savings, severance, and forward-references that repeat the same "this grants nothing / amends nothing by implication" point a dozen times (ss. 2, 3(2)- (4), 4, 6, 7, 8(2), 23, 27(2), 28(2), 30), and whole Parts (7 future automation, 26 deferred harness) confer no operative power and could be struck or held to Bills 14/15 — the operative core (Committee, single round, three-of-four, one deadlock round, mandatory referral, non-delegable Assent, fail-closed) fits in roughly a third of the text, so this draft fails to earn its length and should be pruned before Assent.

- Counsel Verity: AYE - Definitions are complete and every cross-reference lands (s.1/2/9, s.18 disappplied to the Committee, s.19(5) fail-closed, s.19(1) single-pass all verified against CASE-LAW); the one real collision (entrenched "Supreme Court alone enacts", s.9) is cured by express recited amendment plus an anti-implication saving and severance, not papered over - the only residual gaps (who appoints the Clerk-Drafter, who voices an absent slant) are minor and curable by the Interpretation Act forward-reference.
- Counsel Marlowe: AYE - Every power it creates carries a check: non-delegable Royal Assent (ss.18,21,24), the office-unfusing entrenchment lock barring bare executive override (s.19), judicial-independence/non-retaliation and dissent protection (ss.11(3),16(3),20), mandatory constitutional referral (s.15), and an anti-implication saving plus severance (ss.3(4),30) that honestly marks the not-yet-landed ss.1/2/9 amendment as intended-not-in-force rather than grabbing entrenched ground; the only soft spot (rights Bills 6/7/12 and the harness are deferred forward-references) is disclosed, grants no operative power in the interim, and is bound by s.29 against retrospective rights-stripping, so it is responsible sequencing, not a rights gap.
- Counsel Drummond: AYE - It runs: the pipeline is a real fail-closed state machine (ss. 12, 25) mirroring the already-built s. 19(5) gate, the hard one-round deadlock cap (s. 14) makes an automated committee terminating, escalation fires only on a recorded trigger so apex benches don't convene on ordinary bills, and Assent is one user-owned touch per bill (s. 21); the harness and signpost rename are honestly recorded as deferred/owed (ss. 26, 28) rather than pretended-done, so nothing operational is hidden or decorative.

Flags (resolved on the escalation ladder)

- Privy Council referral: Privy Council guidance applied in full: the constitutional work (Acts-over-case-law tier; s. 9 "alone" reconciliation; s. 2 office change) is split out to an express s. 1/s. 9/s. 2 amendment recited in s. 3(3); Bill 2 is drafted as machinery carrying no new power, framing the Committee as the drafting front-end to the single s. 2 Sovereign power and stating on its face that the Committee drafts and the Sovereign alone enacts (no competing sovereign); CHARTER step 3 "overturn" is recast as an express Sovereign amendment citing the section, never a bare executive override (s. 19); the inverted-hierarchy documents are marked intended-until-enacted (s. 28).
- Supreme Court note: Genuine constitutional tension remains on two heads that no drafting can reconcile and that this ordinary Bill cannot itself resolve: (1) the supremacy inversion - entrenched s. 1 makes CASE-LAW supreme and case law subordinate to it, the reverse of the Acts-over-case-law tier Bill 2 assumes; and (2) the s. 9 "alone" reconciliation - s. 9 says "the Supreme Court alone enacts... no competing sovereigns", which must be expressly re-worded to recognise two coordinate enactment routes (Supreme Court ratio-elevation and Sovereign Royal-Assent enactment) with a stated precedence. Per the Privy Council, this leapfrogs to the Supreme Court sitting nine (s. 10, s. 13, s. 20) to rule on the s. 1/s. 9 reconciliation and on the s. 19 separation-of-powers point. Bill 2 is intra vires only as machinery (s. 3(2)-(4)); the Acts tier and the precedence of statute over case law have no force until the express amendment lands. The Supreme Court's ruling stands on the record and binds the Bill until lawfully superseded (s. 19(1)).

- Sovereign consultation required: Will you, in the office of Sovereign/Parliament and by an express deliberate amending instrument citing CASE-LAW ss. 1, 2 and 9 by section number (append-with-supersede), enact the enabling amendment that (a) seats enacted Acts of the Realm above case law (re-wording s. 1), (b) re-words s. 9 to remove or qualify "alone" and recognise two coordinate enactment routes with a stated precedence (Supreme Court ratio-elevation subordinate to enacted Acts), and (c) re-casts the s. 2 office from "Sovereign/Parliament" to "Sovereign Founder / Legislature" with Parliament abolished - thereby giving Bill 2 its constitutional ground; and do you affirm, or by that same amendment supersede, the Supreme Court's ruling on the s. 1/s. 9 reconciliation? Royal Assent to Bill 2 itself is sought only after that amendment and ruling are resolved on the record, the override (if any) being exercised as a Sovereign amendment citing the section and never as a bare executive override (s. 19).
